  - a. Special Allocation Request – Agriculture Resource Economics
    - i. Mike Katz came to discuss the special allocations request. He amended the request date to change to May 8th instead of April 24th. The brownbag will be held at the end of the year and is more interdisciplinary. Want to offer the opportunity for someone to do a poster presentation if possible.
    - ii. GSS 14/15:13 – That the GSS allocate $115 to Agriculture Resource Economics for the purposes of a brownbag
  - b. GSS Service Award – Casey Green
    - i. Casey Green is currently an advanced Ph.D. Candidate in the History Department and was nominated for her integrity, perseverance, and resilient character. She is admired by her peers for her outstanding leadership and political activism. She has helped organize a student group, the Disability Advocacy Coalition, which advocates for students with disabilities on campus. Using her own experiences as a graduate student with cerebral palsy Casey has advocated for a more accessible and healthy campus for UConn community. More specifically, she has advocated for more accessible buildings and transportation in addition to also advocating on for expanded access to health and mental services. Not only has Casey been a strong advocate for graduate students with disabilities but she also been a strong advocate for mothers and the graduate student population as a whole. Casey's tireless advocacy in addition to her graduate studies at UConn has made her a magnificent role model for the UConn community.

Her work is admirable and the Awards Committee is humbled to be able to honor her with this award.

VII. Executive Committee Reports

- a. President – Jason Charrette
  - i. Update – With the incident that happened with the Rock, there were three separate investigations: criminal, community standards, and student affairs. Because we are a state campus they cannot limit speech. If we want to change what is going on we have to try and earnestly figure out what to do and what our next steps should be.
  - ii. Farewell Speech
- b. Vice President – Talea Cornelius
  - i. Transportation Meeting – have managed to meet twice with the transportation planner and trying to get faculty and students in the room together. The leadership with WRTD is changing and there will be two meetings happening tomorrow in Windham

- a. Diversity Committee Report – Huong Nguyen

IX. Issues Forum

- a. HESA Student Statement – Monique Golden
- b. Proposed Graduate-Undergraduate Liaison Committee – USG not present
  - i. Morad Behandish -Faculty Standards – In regards to TA training want to invite the undergrads to come in to learn about TA training and the resources that are available. The Provost is currently working on a new certificate program for graduate students.
  - ii. A discussion was held about the need to create a liaison with the USG. President Charrette brought up how it may depend on whoever is president of USG and whether or not they will want to have a liaison. Some debate was held about whether or not the liaison should be through the GSS, executive board, or an external committee. It was agreed upon to wait until USG has their new officers and then for Tony to reach out to the president during the summer. This topic will be revisited in the beginning of next semester.
- c. Ian Fignon - Wanted to come in to have a conversation with grad students and trying to see where are there grad students interacting with groups and organizations. Graduate students have a lot of skillsets and resources that can be of use to undergrads. It would be useful for grads to become a part of these organizations or maybe work as advisors.
- d. Parking and Transportation – Brandon Benevento
  - i. A lot is now Area 2. This will be temporary until November

GSS Community Service Award 2015 Nominees

In our inaugural year, the Awards Committee received a total of 17 nominations. Each of the graduate students nominated have given remarkable service to the UConn community. The committee enjoyed reading all of the nominations and had a difficult time choosing only one winner. We would, however, still like to recognize all of the graduate students who were nominated. Below, the Awards Committee has written a short paragraph on each nominee highlighting their outstanding service. Thank you to the UConn community for sending your nominations in and also to those graduate students who have in addition to their scholarly work, taken the time back to give back.

Winner:

Casey Green

Casey Green is currently an advanced Ph.D. Candidate in the History Department and was nominated for her integrity, perseverance, and resilient character. She is admired by her peers for her outstanding leadership and political activism. She has helped organize a student group, the Disability Advocacy Coalition, which advocates for students with disabilities on campus. Using her own experiences as a graduate student with cerebral palsy Casey has advocated for a more accessible and healthy campus for UConn community. More specifically, she has advocated for more accessible buildings and transportation in addition to also advocating on for expanded access to health and mental services. Not only has Casey been a strong advocate for graduate students with disabilities but she also been a strong advocate for mothers and the graduate student population as a whole. Casey's tireless advocacy in addition to her graduate studies at UConn has made her a magnificent role model for the UConn community. Her work is admirable and the Awards Committee is humbled to be able to honor her with this award.

Nominees:

Morad Behandish

Morad Behandish engaged and empowered graduate students in the school of engineering. He maximised existing university career resources by increasing the graduate student professional membership, rewarding their participation, and planning opportunities such as the graduate career exposition. His peers recognize him as a mentor, which he additionally serves in a formal capacity as an Innovation Quest (iQ) mentor to convert student ideas into businesses.

Carrie Eaton

Carrie Eaton is a first year Ph.D. student in the school of nursing. She has spent countless hours helping her fellow classmates and previous students with personal and professional advice. She volunteered her time photographing students Saint Francis Hospital and Medical Center and upon winning arranged for the student in the photo to receive the prize instead of herself. Carrie lives by the motto “Everyone Was a Beginner Once” and tries to do all she can to help and enrich the lives of both undergraduate and graduate nursing students.

Cera Fisher

Cera Fisher's nomination resonated with every mark of excellence sought after by the Graduate Community Service Award. She responded to needs of the student body with hard work and sacrifice that directly impacts all graduate student employees of the university. Her service in negotiating graduate student contracts was process oriented, thorough, and has improved conditions for future graduate students.

Monique Golden

Monique Golden has volunteered countless hours in the past years in her continued service to the graduate community. With her partnership with the Graduate School, Monique has helped create a more navigable website for incoming graduate students. Her efforts have allowed incoming students easily navigate and find key information and important forms. She has a strong desire to help others join the UConn community and provide a welcoming atmosphere to graduate students.

Sapna Gupta

Sapna Gupta is the founder and president of the UConn Chapter of Keramos, the first ever Ceramic society for graduate students. In her capacity as president, she has spent countless hours of her time planning events for graduate students and offering guidance to undergraduates. She was recently selected by the Connecticut Technology for the “2015 Woman of Innovation” due to her service to the collegiate community. Sapna is a phenomenal role model to her peers and to the UConn community.

Kevin Marinelli

Debuting his data gloves at the World Maker Faire in September of 2013, Kevin Marinelli has continually represented the community in the best light. Integrating art and computer science struck Kevin as the perfect opportunity to design dual gloves that interface for activities such as puppetry. Kevin's design has been demonstrated during UConn's 2013 Open House to show prospective students the ‘hands on’ hybrid of art and computer science. Additionally, Kevin mentors fellow students in graphics systems and guest lecturers to undergraduate classes where he designs his own props. His dedication to innovation and education represents UConn's finest.

Mairead O'Reilly

Mairead O'Reilly was nominated for her service in helping to organize the Public Interest Law Group Auction. This auction provides funding for fellowships to law students and is a great help to the students of the Law department. In addition to her leadership in PILG, O'Reilly is president of the Women Law Student Association and uses her position to help build a strong professional community in her department.

Arielle Sharma

Arielle Sharma is a second year law student at the University of Connecticut. Arielle has spent her time reinvigorating the Jewish Law Students Association, of which she is now the president. She donates her time and money to hosting Jewish events throughout the year including cooking for a Seder dinner at her apartment. She has helped run the Public Interest Law Group annual auction to raise money for fellowships to law students taking public interest internships over the summer. She also has a strong interest in social just issues and especially prisoner rights.

Cynthia Torres

Cynthia Torres was nominated for her service to the athletics community here at UConn. Her research on heat exposure has helped her as a supervisor and mentor to many student athletes. Torres also volunteers with the Human Performance Lab in the Department of Kinesiology as well as working as a graduate assistant in the Sports and Medical Academy.

Paul Wortman

The current President of the Student Association of Graduate Engineers (SAGE) and UConn Cyber-security Club, Paul Wortman, has endlessly strived to better the Engineering community here at UConn. During his tenure, Paul organized many events such as coffee hours, professional development speakers, and the School of Engineering poster conference. But his dedication to graduate student lives does not stop at the events he designs and attends. Behind the scenes, Paul takes time to mentor his fellow graduate students out of the desire to make UConn life better.

Minutes
22 April 2015

To the UConn Community:

We are fellow students, and we are also your advisors, supervisors, and mentors. In response to recent hateful behavior on campus, including the racist, sexist, and homophobic violations of our campus community, we are writing today to let you know that we hear you.

We stand in solidarity with the students who have been harmed by these events and we empathize with those who feel that their voices have not been heard and their pain has not been felt. These actions are egregious and cannot be tolerated. We ourselves are hurt by the continued silence that has filled our campus and the overwhelming lack of response addressing these behaviors. This is not okay.

Students, faculty, and staff in our community are burdened on a daily basis by acts of subtle and overt discrimination. While it is easy to believe that our society has come a long way, hateful expression is indicative of the work that remains. No matter who you are or where you come from, you deserve to be safe and valued within our community.

We have a responsibility to not be silent about these issues. As future leaders in higher education, it is our obligation, in partnership with the campus community, to ensure that students leave college as better people than when they arrived. We also understand the role we have in this development. We hope this letter will spark more conversation throughout the UConn community and encourage others to speak out against any form of discrimination that may be happening on our campus and in our society.

To those who feel targeted and to those who feel voiceless, we hear you.

In solidarity,

The Students of the Higher Education and Student Affairs (HESA) Master's Program

Were the details of the meeting confidential? No.

Was anything of relevance to graduate students?

Much of what was mentioned at the meeting did not relate to graduate students.

Detailed Report

The Diversity Committee proposed plans for the retention of underrepresented faculty and staff and held a meeting with the Provost to discuss further plans. The Senate Diversity Committee ended up presenting on 3 central strategies that encompassed the vision of the Senate Diversity Committee on how to increase retention of under-represented faculty/staff on March 2nd. It was well received according to the committee. The committee met with the Provost on April 1st. Please see slide show attached.

Overview of Report

This meeting was spent discussing three main topics, namely: 1) Student Evaluations of Teaching (SET) follow-up from previous meetings, and other teaching assessment criteria; 2) Guidelines for faculty to prepare syllabi by the Provost's office; and 3) Teaching Assistant (TA) training resources.

The discussion from previous meetings throughout the academic year about SETs were concluded by the notion that SETs should not be the only form of teaching evaluation for faculty by the department heads. Therefore, the FSC members discussed how to prepare a presentation for the University Senate to emphasize on the importance of considering other measures and not 'over-interpreting' SET results.

The next discussion was regarding what and how much information to put on the syllabi, how much is overkill, and how the faculty are supposed to be guided about preparation of course syllabi. The suggestion was that the Provost's office should organize links on their website to important issues that must be mentioned on the syllabi, (including sexual harassment, romantic relationships, disabilities, accommodation of religious holidays, etc.). As is the case with any guideline, information overload is not recommended. A template of the minimal things that must be on the syllabi is provided by the Center for Information Teaching and Learning (ITL).

The last discussion was about TA training: basic training at the orientations, Keith Barker's advanced training, follow-up training throughout the semester, an existing certificate program (DHE) in place (Keith Barker), and a new certificate program that will be made available in future (Sally Reis). I brought up the concerns raised by the USG to GSS about non-optimal usage of these resources. Keith mentioned that some departments are very good in using them, other are too busy (esp. sciences: Chemistry, Biology, etc., where faculty sometimes don't allow their TAs to take time from research for their TA training). He also pointed to ITL lunch-time workshops, and departmental programs. FSC members thought 'departmental culture' plays an important role in the extent to which TA training is exploited.

Action Items for Senate

I'd like to take a few minutes talking to the senate about my conversation with Keith Barker after the FSC meeting, regarding the TA training resources, as a follow-up to the concerns the USG representatives raised to the GSS in the previous senate meeting. I asked Keith if himself (or other people he might recommend) can attend a GSS meeting and talk about TA training resources in more detail to the GSS and USG representatives. He is retiring (but will be around), nevertheless he recommended asking 1) Peter Diplock, Assistant Vice Provost for Excellence in Teaching & Learning, and director of the Center for Excellence in Teaching & Learning (CETL) under which ITL currently operates; 2) David Moss; and 3) Doug Kauffman.
